

Wyoming's Frequently Asked Admissions Questions

ADMISSION ON MOTION

Does Wyoming have admission on motion?

Wyoming does have admission on motion for qualifying attorneys. Wyoming does not have a formal reciprocity agreement with any state, so each application is considered on an individual basis. Attorneys from certain jurisdictions are considered eligible for admission on motion if they meet the requirements of the Rules & Procedures Governing Admission to the Practice of Law in Wyoming (<http://www.courts.state.wy.us/WSC/CourtRule?RuleNumber=72#613>).

What are the basic requirements for admission on motion?

- Engaged in the active practice of law for five of the seven years immediately preceding the application date in an eligible jurisdiction(s)
- Certificates of admission and good standing from the highest court for each jurisdiction in which the applicant is admitted to practice law
- Evidence of compliance with the continuing legal education (CLE) requirements of all jurisdictions in which the applicant is admitted to practice law (if applicable)
- Good moral character and fitness to practice law
- J.D. from an ABA-approved law school
- A scaled score of 85 or higher on the Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination (MPRE)

PLEASE NOTE: There are no provisions for foreign-educated applicants.

Is my jurisdiction eligible for admission on motion?

Please read your jurisdiction's rules for admission on motion carefully. If your jurisdiction does not offer admission on motion to members of the Wyoming State Bar, you must apply to take the Wyoming Bar Examination. If your jurisdiction requires an additional exam for motion applicants, then you are not eligible for admission on motion in Wyoming and must take the Wyoming Bar Examination. Likewise, if you are only licensed but not actively practicing in an eligible jurisdiction, then you are not eligible for admission on motion in Wyoming and must take the Wyoming Bar Examination.

If you apply for admission on motion and it is determined that you are not eligible, you may choose to sit for the next scheduled bar examination without an additional application fee. If you choose not to sit for the bar examination, your application fee is non-refundable.

When is the application deadline?

There is no specific deadline for motion applications. A motion applicant may be admitted to the practice of law in Wyoming at the discretion of the Supreme Court. Once the Board of Law Examiners (BLE) has reviewed the application and motion, together with all supporting data and has forwarded its recommendation, the Court will act on the recommendation in a timely manner and you will be notified of that recommendation.

What is the application fee?

A non-refundable $600 fee must be paid to the Wyoming Supreme Court at the time your application is submitted to the Wyoming Supreme Court. The Court will accept payment by personal check or money order. It may take several weeks before your check clears your bank; please ensure there will be adequate funds to process the check until it clears.

There is an additional non-refundable fee for the background investigation that is paid directly to the National Conference of Bar Examiners (NCBE). The NCBE will accept payment by personal check, money order or credit card.

Where can I find the application forms?

All forms are accessible on the Wyoming State Bar website at www.wyomingbar.org. You may also send a written request to cduncil@wyomingbar.org to have an application packet mailed to you. You will receive the same forms which are available online, with the exception of the NCBE forms, which must be completed through its online process.

What are my obligations once I submit an application?

You are required to update your application to keep it current and accurate at all times during the admission process. Please notify the Admissions Director in writing in the event there are any changes to your application. Should you need to make any changes to your application after it has been filed (other than address information), you must complete an Amendment to Application form (available at www.wyomingbar.org), and submit it to the Wyoming State Bar. You may also be required to submit an amendment to the NCBE character report; that form (available at www.ncbex.org).
